MEDICINAL.

Consumption Cured.

THE JUDGE OF HANOVER COUNTY SPEAKS.

Tim. Howard suffered for three years with lung and throat troubles, and last spring was thought by his neighbors to he dying. I heard of his condition and gave him A. B. C. Tonic. Its effect was magical. In a very short time he was able to leave his bed, and now regards himself a well man. Others in this vicinity have taken the "Tonic" with pronounced benefit.

"Mosby's Big Raid"

To the Editor of the Alexandria Gazette: Are we never to have an end of such naustating and extravagant rehashings of circum-lances connected with the forays of the civil war, as the one published from the

New York Herald in your issue of April 5th, purporting to be an account of a "big raid by Mosby's guarillas?" If not, then it is useless for us to hope for the extinction of the depiorable feud which for a generation has been seriously antagonizing the people of the northern and southern sections of our country.

The "reminiscences" with which books, magezines and newspapers have been wide-ly flooding the land have had no tendency to restore the fraternal relaions of ante bellum days, because they have been writ-ten in a partizan spirit, and their only effect has been to keep alive the feeling of enmity which existed while the srife was going on. Many of these "reminiscences" have undoubtedly had their origin in the distemper-ed imaginations of writers who never faced a loaded musket and were never near enough to a battle or even a skirmish to realize any of their actualities. Nevertheless, no lack of credulous readers have been found to buy and read their romances, and the trade of making and scattering them broadcast has thriven immensely.
While such writers are encouraged, the breach of malignant feelings will not be parrowed, and the true spirits of social and business reciprocity cannot prevail.

The war was a great calamity, as the tens of thousands of widows and orphans of the slain in the strife mournfully attest. But the last shot was fired a quarter of a century age, and the bitter animosities with which t was waged ought at this late day to be buried beyond the possibility of a resurrec-

If two neighbors have had a quarrel and have again become friends, their new friend-ship is best strengthened and perpetuated, not by one or the other of them forever referring to the aggravating circumstances of their late "unpleasantness," but by a persistent avoidance by both parties of any al-lusion to their unfortunate differences; and the same sensible course ought to apply in all future time to the relations between the people of the North and the South.

The ghouls on both sides who are conare but opening afresh the old wounds and should receive as they deserve the condem-nation of all who have had enough of contention, and now sincerely desire the restoration of real peace and harmony throughout the Union.

The recital in the account already referred to of the prowess of "Parson Chapman" and his doughty comrades is suggestive of the startling feats of Bluebeard, the pirate, in his palmiest days of cold-blooded and retless butcheries on the high seas, as told to us by the old remancers of his time.

It must have been a terrific sight for any onlocker as he descried those valiant knights, after they had got Capt. Flint's soldiers well hemmed up in the "barn yard," proceed to lay them out in quick succession by lopping oil heads and riddling hearts with bullets something after the fashion, we suppose, of a Cincinnati hog butcher who would slaughter a drove of swine. We really think if Parson Chapman should happen to read this thrilling reminiscence of that fierce encounter, of which be seems to have been the mighty "round head" and "Psalm singing hero," he would surely be troubled by the harrowing pranks of an enormous nightmare in the first nap he took

It was the hap of the writer to go through the four years of the war as a soldier in defense of the Union, and though he had no lack of severe experiences, he thanks his stars that he never came into contact with such tender mercies in the field, as were mered out to the lucklesse Yanks in that Virginia bereyard. Such exaggerations are by no means confined to Confederate accounts of war incidents. They are characteristic of many Union accounts as well, and ere many generations shall have passed, if the reminiscences of item bunters shall keep on multiplying as they have done during the last twenty-five years, it will be as difficult for the student of our history to separate fact from fable, as it is to get at the truth of the early Greek or Egyptian annulacturers.
